ARE WE A DOOMED RACE?

Nevada Will Soon be as Dead as the Moon—The Other States Will Slowly but Surely Follow—Civilization on This Continent Only a Question of a Few Centuries.

A writer in the Examiner discourses thus learnedly upon the future condition of Nevada and of America. His lunacy is of a mild form and as Artemus Ward was wont to say, is "quite amusin'."

How much longer will Nevada be included among the States of the Union?

This is the question that the recent census report has caused to be greatly discussed among the scientific men in Washington. Up to the present time it has not been an imagined possibility that any one of the United States could be deprived of its Statehood. But what can prevent its happening eventually?

A gentleman connected with the Smithsonian Institute, with the greater part of the alphabet attached to his name like the tail to a kite, talked to the Examiner correspondent on this subject just the other day. He was unwilling to have his name used, as he observed:

"I may visit Nevada one of these days, and I should prefer not to be the central figure at a lynching party of indignant Nevadans."

In answer to the question that begins this article he replied:

"I cannot set any exact date for such an occurrence, but it will be before long. According to the last census Nevada only shows a population of 45,000 souls all told, and this number is fast diminishing.

"Nevada will, before many years have passed, be, to all intents and purposes, a dead State—defunct as is the moon. So rapidly has it been undergoing the process of depopulation that it has now fewer people in it than ordinarily go to make up a good-sized town.

"Now, what is the reason of this?

"It is very simple. Nevada's resources are of a mineral nature and they are being exhausted rapidly. Soon they will be entirely gone and the people will be unable to live there.

NEVADA ONLY THE FIRST.

"The appalling thing to contemplate in connection with this subject is that this is only the first of the States of the Union which are destined to die. So tremendously prosperous does the country at present appear that hardly any one seems to have realized the fact that things cannot last indefinitely as they are. And yet it is believed by many of the deepest scientific thinkers of to-day that within a few centuries civilized man will have been wiped off the face of this continent, for the simple reason that it will no longer support his being.

"Through the progressive exhaustion of the resources of the country, one State after another will necessarily become uninhabitable, because it will be incapable of supporting a population. Thus will come about the depopulation of one State after another, of course by a slow process through many years, and there will be presented the remarkable phenomenon of the dropping from the Union of one State after another, because they have come to be no longer entitled to representation under the law by Senators and Representatives. Nevada will simply be the first State to succumb to the operation of this inevitable law.

"The outlook is melancholy. That is not to be denied. It is not pleasant to consider the frame of mind of the last civilized man on this continent, a very few centuries hence, standing on a sandhill, where once the maize luxuriantly grew, and shedding a silent tear of reflection on the past of a continent which is given up to savagery ever more."

The contracts have just been let to Oakland parties for the construction of the Stanford University Museum at Palo Alto. The building is to be a monolithic structure, walls and floors of concrete and twisted iron, the same as used in the Academy of Science in San Francisco. This branch of the work alone will cost $150,000, and the building will be the most important edifice of the kind in the country.

The recommendations of the International American Conference for the establishment of an American monetary union and the issue of a common silver coin have been adopted by all the American republics, except Guatemala, Uruguay, and Paraguay, which have not yet been heard from. The first meeting will take place at Washington on Wednesday, January 17th.

The Court-house at Los Angeles was sold at auction Saturday for $100,500 to Silas Holman, representing capitalists who will build a fine business block there. The old house was built by John Temple in 1859 for a market, and was bought for a Court-house in 1871.

Saturday at Cincinnati, Louis Schuing, worn out by watching at the bedside of his daughter, who was ill with diphtheria, gave her by mistake a dose of carbolic acid. The child died in two hours, and the father had to be restrained from taking his own life.

A farmer named Hollowman, in Nebraska county, Iowa, Friday found a solid gold nugget weighing 70 ounces on the edge of a small creek on his farm. It is believed that a heavy deposit of precious metal will be found on investigation.

TRAINING SCHOOLS FOR NURSES.

The Hospitals in New York City Which Fit Men and Women for Nursing.

The Bellevue Training School for Nurses was started on May 1, 1873, with a superintendent and five nurses, having five wards under their care.

In 1890 the school had 63 pupils and had graduated 345, while as a direct outgrowth of that modest beginning there are three other great schools in New York alone. These are the New York City, which has 64 pupils and has graduated 263: the New York hospital, with 48 pupils and 192 graduates, and Mount Sinai, with 50 pupils and 111 graduates. There are also smaller schools in the city, but, great or small, Bellevue must always be honored as the pioneer. Her graduates are at the head of most of the important schools and hospitals in the country, and have even gone so far afield as England, Italy and China.

The next school to be established was the New York city, which was started by the commissioners of charities and correction in 1877, and is entirely supported by the city. Until 1889 it was known as the Charity Hospital school, because it began there, but as it grew its work spread, until the old name was misleading and had to be changed.

It is now the largest and in some respects the most important of all the schools, as it nurses five different hospitals—Charity and Maternity on Blackwell's Island, the Infants' hospital on Randall's Island, Gouverneur, at Gouverneur Slip, and Harlem, at the foot of East One Hundred and Twentieth street, the two last being accident or emergency hospitals, while at Charity the cases are largely chronic. Besides the pupils of the school there are thirty-two permanent trained nurses at Charity and Randall's Island, making nearly a hundred in all, for whom the superintendent is directly responsible, and over whom she has full authority. The other schools in the city are supported from the funds of the hospitals which they nurse.—Mrs. Frederick Rhinelander Jones in Scribner's.

Fish with Brass Labels.

If any one engaged in sea fishing should capture fish with brass labels tied to their tails with aluminum wire or a black silk cord an explanation will no doubt be somewhat eagerly desired. There are hundreds of fish so treated in the sea, and it need not be concluded that practical jokers have been at work. The brass label is an indication that the fish wearing it has been in the hands of the grave men of science who are investigating the habits, the food and the growth conditions of fish in Scottish waters. Two objects are served by the label attachment.

In the event of the fish being recaptured by any one who will give information to the scientific cruisers of the Scottish fishery board on the Garland there will be something known about its migratory habits. Its rate of growth in a state of freedom may also be investigated. It might be thought that the chance of meeting with these labeled fish again would be very small, but it appears that the Garland cruisers themselves have recaptured 2½ per cent. of the plaice and 18 per cent. of the cod wearing their medals. But only plaice, cod and skate were recaptured. The experiments are to be continued on a large scale. They do not interfere with the health of the fish, which when recaught are plump and in good condition.—London Illustrated News.

John Is the Older.

Among a certain coterie in this city more or less speculation was a short time since going on concerning the relative ages of Senator Charles B. Farwell and his brother John V., the merchant prince. It was of no use to consult the public records, for they differed and were not reliable. And as John V. simply shook his head and smiled in answer to inquiries on the subject, and as the senator when in Washington declined to express himself in writing, the individuals interested were compelled to let their thirst for knowledge continue unslakened until the latter should return. When he did return he was ill, but that was no obstacle, and upon gaining his presence the committee put the question to him. The senator looked at them for a moment, raised himself on his elbow and replied in feeble tones:

"I was born first, but John is the older."

Then he lay down on his pillow, turned over, and the committee, bursting with a plethora of information, withdrew.—Chicago Herald.

Wealthy.

A prominent citizen of St. Paul was in Minneapolis and met a former acquaintance whose ordinary condition was what is known as impecunious. This time, however, his face was fairly beaming.

"How are you?" he asked in a cheerful bass voice as he extended his hand to the man from St. Paul.

"First rate. How are you?"

"Splendid! Do you know"—here he dropped his voice to a confidential key—"I've been given the use for life of a half million dollar estate over on Nicollet avenue?"

"You have?" asked the other man in astonishment.

"Yes; the public library.'—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

Walt Whitman's Humor.

Walt Whitman is popularly thought to have no sense of humor, but one day a young man dropped in upon him at his humble home in Camden, N. J., introduced himself as a poet, and begged to be allowed permission to read selections from a bundle of manuscripts which he carried. "No, thank you," said Whitman, courteously but firmly, "I have been paralyzed twice."—San Francisco Argonaut.

To Lubricate His Words.

Miss De Gimp (looking through the samples of a drummer for a material house)—What do you carry this little oil can for?

Drummer—I wear that under my tongue when I tackle a rough customer.—Jewelers' Weekly.

Women and Their Dogs in Paris.

Women here, as in London, have an insatiable mania for carrying or leading by chain pug dogs of all degrees of ugliness. One afternoon, during a shower of rain, one was seen walking along the Quai Jemmapes, where a number of workmen had just finished discharging a cargo of coal from a barge. The lady held in one hand an umbrella, with which she carefully protected from the least drop of wet an ugly little dog with a gorgeous blue ribbon round its neck. By her side trotted her daughter, a little girl about 8 years old, her shoes not so waterproof as they might have been, who, deprived of the protection of the umbrella monopolized by the dog, was rapidly getting drenched.

As she was about to cross the bridge which spans the canal one of the coal heavers went up to her and said, "Allow me, madam, to relieve you of your dog, so that you may carry your girl to the other side." The woman accepted the offer, but when the party arrived at the other end of the bridge the coal heaver threw the pug into the canal, telling its mistress at the same time, "That's a lesson to you not to shelter a dog while your child is getting wet."

The woman screamed and soon a crowd collected, to whom she pathetically narrated the assassination of her pet. Two policemen at her instigation took the coal heaver to the station, but the superintendent declined to formulate any charge against him. All she could do, he told her, was to bring a civil action for the value of her dog. She left the station "apparently much dissatisfied with the decision."—Paris Cor. London Telegraph.

All Watches Compasses.

A few days ago I was standing by an American gentleman when I expressed a wish to know which point was the north. He at once pulled out his watch, looked at it, and pointed to the north. I asked him whether he had a compass attached to his watch. "All watches," he replied, "are compasses." Then he explained to me how this was. Point the hour hand to the sun, and the south is exactly half way between the hour and the figure 12 on the watch. For instance, suppose that it is 4 o'clock. Point the hand indicating 4 to the sun and 2 on the watch is exactly south.

Suppose that it is 8 o'clock. Point the hand indicating 8 to the sun and the figure 10 on the watch is due south. My American friend was quite surprised that I did not know this. Thinking that very possibly I was ignorant of a thing that every one else knew, and happening to meet Mr. Stanley, I asked that eminent traveler whether he was aware of this simple mode of discovering the points of the compass. He said that he had never heard of it. I presume, therefore, that the world is in the same state of ignorance. Amalfi is proud of having been the home of the inventor of the compass. I do not know what town boasts of my American friend as a citizen.—London Truth.

A Farmer on a Bicycle.

The New England farmer of today is much given to the covered carriage and horse that holds his head high. I suspect that the reliable but somewhat deliberate ox satisfied his ancestors. I met one farmer near Holyoke driving his cow home from the pasture on a bicycle—that is, the man was on a bicycle and the cow was ahead of him on foot, though she looked as if she would appreciate a bicycle, too, as he was speeding her along on a rather lively trot. I stopped him and asked him if there was any show for a farmer to make money in that section, and while the patient cow leaned against a tree and caught her breath he replied that there was none whatever.

His grandfather had made money on the farm, he said, but he could not. Then he called to the cow to "hump herself," and went spinning down the road with the long suffering beast making desperate efforts to keep from being run over. It occurred to me that perhaps his grandfather did not pick the stones off the farm with a bicycle and a pair of tongs.—Cor. New York Tribune.

Impure Ice.

The Massachusetts board of health has examined 76 samples of water and 336 samples of ice from 58 localities, with the result of showing that, contrary to general belief, ice may be nearly as impure as the water from which it forms. The crystallization of the water forces out the color, salt, and most of the matter in solution, and clear ice from polluted sources may be comparatively free from impurities and the probability of hiding disease germs.

But in snow ice and ice formed by flooding the impurities become entangled, so that freezing gives no purification. The public is warned by the board, therefore, that ice is unsafe for domestic purposes when obtained from a source polluted by sewage beyond that which would be allowable in drinking water, and that in general it is much safer to use for drinking water and for placing in contact with food that portion of the ice that is clear.—Arkansaw Traveler.

A Historic Cradle.

The Emperor William, his brothers and sisters, his children and all his Hohenzollern ancestors born since 1722 have been successively rocked in the family cradle of that illustrious house or enthroned thereon during the court procession which adds splendor to each royal christening. The ancient couch is a clumsy structure of old oak, richly carved, round whose four sides is cut in large Roman characters the text, "He hath given his angels charge over thee, that they keep thee in all thy ways."—Harper's Bazar.

Editorial Courtesy.

Editor (to Miss Oldgirl, aged about forty)—Your work shows promise, madam, but do you know that good literary work is seldom done by a woman until she is 30 or 35? Several years hence you will be able to write available articles.

Miss Oldgirl (as she leaves)—That was the most delightful man I ever met.—West Shore.

THE N. & C. R. R.

The Susanville Advocate speaks as follows concerning the N. & C. and its further extension:

If Mr. Gest, whom we consider has been in his day one of the ablest representatives of railroad interests in the union, will examine the reports of the N. C. & O. railroad for all the years since its commencement, we think he will find facts which, if followed out to their logical results, will prove conclusively that every dollar which has been expended in adding length to that road from the time it left Chat has brought double the return to the company than the cost to that point did. This is chiefly because of the fact that in starting out from Reno, nearly thirty miles were traversed before a farm was reached, and the road to Chat cost, if we remember correctly, nearly a half million dollars.

From Chat northward to Lassen the road was, or could be, comparatively easily built, the route traversing ground nearly level, and ties being obtainable at minimum cost. The extension made this year took the road from Liegan to Amedee, a point within about twelve miles by the survey from Lassen, the place at which the road would, if it followed its present surveyed route, leave the north side of Honey Lake Valley. The twelve miles named is over ground that is uniformly level. All that would be necessary to build the road would be to string out the ties, spike on the rails, and then run over it with the ballasting train with a few loads of dirt, and business could commence.

It has been some time since we read Col. Seiler's works on railroad building, or even built one on paper ourselves, nor are we at this time worried with superfluous wealth, but feel safe in saying that we will pay all that that extension would cost in excess of ten thousand dollars per mile.

Now, if these statements be true and we feel assured they are, we can very quickly prove to the N. C. O. people that they will by building that addition enhance the value of their property as no other expenditure has, and at the same time give to the people of Honey Lake Valley and northward such railroad facilities as will enable all concerned to do something worth while. As we now remember it, the road to Liegan including equipment, has cost about eight hundred thousand dollars, and was paying about three per cent. per annum interest thereon. The road completed to Lassen would cost probably about one hundred and fifty thousand dollars more, or a million and fifty thousand in all. If the company will add the one hundred and twenty-five thousand necessary to build to Lassen, we will guarantee that their interest income will at once be increased one-fourth, and in the course of two years the net investment will be giving a return of six per per cent. per annum.

The chief reason for this is that where the end of the road now is, and where it has for the past two years been, teamsters could not, in the Winter months, get to and from the stations with full loads, the mud being of a bottomless character when very wet. To explain so that no one who never saw Honey lake may understand, suppose a valley generally level, about twenty-five miles in length from north to south, and about twenty from east to west, in the southerly center of which is Honey Lake, covering an area of about two hundred thousand acres. Through this valley from north to south draw an imaginary central line, on the west side of which line is located: First—All the land in the valley at the present time being farmed.

Second—All the population in Honey lake valley.

Third—All of the timber in the valley.

Fourth—All of the towns in the valley, including the proposed terminus and town of Lassen, namely, Milford, Buntingville, Janesville, Belfast and Susanville, the county seat, none of them less than twenty and some of them thirty miles from the present terminus.

Fifth—On the west of that line are good wagon roads, leading north, south and west from Lassen, all the towns and populations mentioned above, which roads are roads composed in part of sand, and for that reason are, if anything, better in Winter than in Summer, and teamsters and the travel generally can at all times get to and from Lassen with full loads and in good time.

On the east of the line named is the railroad and the station, Liegan, and the terminus, Amedee, two farms, Brubecks and Highrock, and a vast area of as yet unsettled land which is considered valuable, and with water for irrigation will doubtless produce good crops, but which is of such character as to make very poor roads for Winter travel.

If these reasons are not sufficient to prove that a twelve-mile extension should be made without unnecessary delay, then we will advance more. These suggestions are made in a friendly spirit, not with a view of unjust criticism, but to show to the managers and promoters of that road how they can vastly better their business and plant and at the same time give to the public in whose interest as well as the railroad's we are working, those facilities they so much desire, and for which they have so long and patiently waited.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. Distress after eating, sour stomach, sick headache, heartburn, loss of appetite, a faint, "all gone" feeling, bad taste, coated tongue, and irregularity of the bowels, are some of the more common symptoms. Dyspepsia does not get well of itself. It requires careful, persistent attention, and a remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acts gently, yet surely and efficiently. It tones the stomach and other organs, regulates the digestion, creates a good appetite, and by thus overcoming the local symptoms removes the sympathetic effects of the disease, banishes the headache, and refreshes the tired mind.

Distress After Eating

Sick Headache

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness, or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. My trouble, I think, was aggravated by my business, which is that of a painter, and from being more or less shut up in a room with fresh paint. Last spring I took Hood's Sarsaparilla—took three bottles. It did me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced." ACCIDENTALLY SHOT HIMSELF.

Denis Mahoney Receives a Pistol Wound in the Groin That May Prove Fatal.

Saturday evening at Virginia City Denis Mahoney, a young man employed on street excavations, accidentally shot himself, and is probably fatally injured. He has been living in a little cabin near the corner of C and Hickey streets, near the Divide, says the Enterprise. It appears that some hoodlum boys Friday stoned his cabin and broke out the front window. He swore out warrants for the arrest of three boys and then borrowed a pistol with which, as he says, to defend himself.

Saturday evening he was discovered by officer Perry considerably under the influence of liquor and about to go up town. Officer Perry persuaded him to return to his cabin. As the officer started away Mahoney discharged his pistol in the air. The officer returned and arrested him, and told him he would now have to take him to the lockup.

Mahoney went along with the officer without much trouble until the west side of C street was reached. Then he became contrary. Officer Perry called up Richard, the blacksmith, and a Mr. Stanley to assist him. These men took hold of Mahoney, who squatted himself down upon the edge of the sidewalk.

Officer Perry observing that Mahoney had got out his pistol seized his hand. The other men assisting, Mahoney's hand was pressed down to the ground. While this struggle for the pistol was in progress the weapon was accidentally discharged. The bullet from it entered Mahoney's left groin and lodged in his body. It is not known in what direction the bullet ranged, but the wounded man declares he can feel it in his abdomen.

Mahoney was taken to the hospital. Dr. Webber says the wound may not prove fatal, but he fears the bullet cut the bladder which would surely produce a fatal result.

Mahoney is about 26 years of age and unmarried. He has a sister here and one in San Francisco; also has several other relatives on the Comstock.

FORT BIDWELL.

Troops Will Not be Withdrawn at Present.

The Secretary of War has decided not to abandon Fort Bidwell. He thinks it is not safe for settlers in that region to be left without the protection which is now afforded by the troops at that post. The Sioux Indian troubles and the murders by the Indians of Arizona have scared the people living in that vicinity. The Piutes are peaceably inclined, but at the present time the War Department is inclined to regard all Indians, good and bad, with suspicion. As heretofore, troops will be concentrated near railroad depots and large cities. No troops will be moved from an isolated post where there is the slightest danger to settlers.

Orders have been issued directing Assistant Surgeon W. M. J. Wakeman to return to duty at Fort Bidwell.

Advice to Mothers.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflamation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. feb. 21-swf-y

Naughty Fellow.

The Oroville Mercury is responsible for the following: "A certain young man in town has a pair of white mice, and when he goes calling on the young ladies he has a habit of taking them with him in his pocket—they are nice things to play with! He engages the young lady in conversation and when she is quite interested he slips, unseen, one of the mice onto the floor. Of course the young man calls the young lady's attention to the mouse, and it being well educated does the rest. In this way the naughty fellow has been able to judge the comparative size of the Oroville girl's feet, and he says they are as large as those found anywhere.

A Free Man.

On the 23d the Rough Elliott case was concluded at Bakersfield, the jury standing nine for acquittal. The Judge released Elliott on his own recognizance, until such time as the District Attorney of Inyo moved to dismiss the case.

ON THE ROAD.

The fields are all sweet with hay,
The brakes are all blithe with song,
On the hedges rose garlands sway,
Convolvulus clusters throng,
As shoeless, and tattered, and grimy, and gray,
He shuffles along.

A skylark sings high above,
A thrush from yon hanging bough,
Far away in the wood a dove;
But he passes with scowling brow,
Their melodies once he was wont to love;
He hates them now.

Hates all; save the sheltering night,
When under a bank he creeps,
And Squalor is out of sight,
And Hunger its distance keeps,
And unmocked by the birds and the meadows bright,
His misery sleeps.

—New York Tribune.

An Affecting Incident.

The conflagration of the scaffolds intended for fireworks for the celebration of the marriage of Louis XVI is generally known. Amidst the distracted multitude pressing on every side, trampled under the horses' feet, precipitated into the ditches of the Rue Royale and the square, was a young man, with a girl with whom he was in love. She was beautiful; their attachment had lasted several years; pecuniary causes had delayed their union; but the following day they were to be married. For a long time the lover, protecting his betrothed, keeping her behind him, covering her with his own person, sustained her strength and courage. But the tumult, the cries, the terror and peril every moment increased. "I am sinking," she said; "my strength fails. I can go no further."

"There is yet a way!" cried the lover in despair; "get on my shoulders." He feels that his advice has been followed, and the hope of saving her whom he loves redoubles his ardor and strength. He resists the most violent concussions; with his arms firmly extended before his breast he with difficulty forces his way through the crowd; at length he clears it. Arrived at one of the extremities of the place, having set down his precious burden, faltering, exhausted, fatigued to death, but intoxicated with joy, he turns round. It was a different person! Another, more active, had taken advantage of his recommendation. His beloved was no more!—New York Ledger.

Just an Ordinary Woodchuck Log.

When I was a boy my father had a fine field of clover, and he discovered that woodchucks were making sad havoc with it. On the field was a log, and near the log the destruction was the greatest. My father told me I must kill those woodchucks. I went to the field a number of times, but could not get a shot at them. I came to the conclusion that I must use a little strategy; so one morning I went to the field before light. With my gun both barrels loaded with a heavy charge of BB shot, I got in a position where I could take a range of the log lengthwise.

As it began to grow light the woodchucks began to gather for their morning frolic. They mounted the log, sat up and looked around to see there was nothing to disturb them. When I thought the log was nearly covered with them I pulled both barrels at once. The gun kicked me over. When I got up there were no woodchucks to be seen. I went to the log and picked up fourteen dead woodchucks, and it wasn't any great log for woodchucks, either.—Boston Record.

But Office Cats Are Very Useful.

We have edited a newspaper for several years, and in that time we have received propositions to advertise goods on shares, to advertise and take the pay in pills, in trees, in flowers, in free tickets, have even had opera house managers demand advertisements as a matter of news, and then demand pay for admission or no go; but it remained for an enterprising merchant of Temple to cap the climax with his proposition. He has a lot of strayed animals, and after hinting around and suggesting "news" items that would contain some reference to the lost animals, he finally proposed to advertise for them if we would take the pay in cats.—Temple Times.

Her Regard for Propriety.

A gentleman on a 'cycling tour staid a night at a prim old lady's cottage, the inns being full. He was very deaf, and took care to impress the fact on his hostess, with instructions that some one must enter his room to wake him at a particular time in the morning. Waking of himself some time later he found that the old lady, with creditable regard for propriety, had slipped under his door a note inscribed:

"Sir, it is half-past 7!"—London Tit-Bits.

Simple Safeguards on Electric Railways.

M. C. Sullivan suggests in The Electrical Engineer that a very wise and simple precaution will be the supplying to each car operated by electricity of a pair of rubber gloves, insulated pliers and nippers, and suitable inscriptions to indicate their use. These may possibly be the means of preventing delay and inconvenience, and of obviating serious results in case of accidents.

The greatest measure of variability in the matter of lopped ears is to be found among dogs. Spaniels, setters, pointers, bloodhounds, beagles and foxhounds all have long, pendulous ears; bulldogs, terriers, collies and greyhounds droop only the tips of their ears; the spitz has erect ears, while mastiffs and many other breeds have short, pendulous or semi-pendulous ears.

The elephant probably came of an ancestral stock that had erect ears, but for ages past there has been no creature powerful enough to cause it alarm, and for want of exercise the muscles which move the ear have lost tone and wasted away, leaving the ear to lop or hang pendulous.

Directly one enters a room there is a sense either of cheer or the reverse. After leaving the apartment one may not be able to tell how it was furnished, but every one knows the effect produced.

A BID FOR ALASKA.

Captain Carroll Has Been Authorized to Offer $14,000,000 for the Territory.

Captain James Carroll, of Sitka, who was chosen by the Alaskan Convention to be the Territorial Delegate if Congress should give Alaska representation, in talking to a reporter for the Post said if the representation is denied, Congress should at least grant other reasonable requests to the people of Alaska; he also spoke of a proposition he was willing to make on the part of the solid citizens of the country. If Congress did not think Alaska of enough importance to give it a system of jurisprudence and all the facilities and rights it had granted every other outlying settlement of the Government, he was empowered to offer the sum of $14,000,000 for the Territory, and would pay it over in $20 gold pieces on the shortest sort of notice. This was $7,500,000 more than it cost, not to speak of the big yearly profits the Government had taken for sealing privileges. This offer, he said, was bona fide, and he was sure if those making the offer had complete ownership, whatever flag was raised, they could secure to the people the blessing of a popular government, unhampered by the annoying defects of the present system, which worked useless hardships and clogged its development.

Native Sons Installation.

The following officers were installed Saturday night at a regular meeting of Fremont Temple, No. 1, Native Sons of Nevada, to serve for the ensuing quarter: C. A. Norcross, P. C.; Robert Lewers, T. C; C. D. Van Duzer, S. M.; H. C. Cutting, Sen.; Frank Coffin, Chron.; W. E. Barney, K. D. B.; F. H. Norcross, Shep.; F. Bristol, Q.; George Goe, W. B.; E. Hardach, Sr. R.; Fred Frey, Jr. R.; Ralph Hawcroft, Sl.; Gus Moore, V.; Geo. Irwin, Chor.

The order is in a healthy condition and growing rapidly. It has been instituted but a few months and already has 80 members in the State.

The Great Northern Pushing Its Way to the Pacific Coast.

The current number of the Northwestern Railroader says that it is the intention of the Great Northern to push its line through to the Pacific Coast. The contract for building the extension from the summit of the Rockies to a point beyond the Kootenay river has been let to Shephard, Zims & Co. of St. Paul. This makes the extension from the main line at Havre, Mont., about five hundred miles, the first 125 miles of which has been completed and turned over to the operating department.

And swimming majesty of step and tread,
The symmetry of form and feature, set
The soul afloat, even like delicious airs
Of flute and harp."

For her matchless look of grace and motion, this regal beauty was indebted to perfect health, restored by the use of that unequaled, invigorating tonic and nervine, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which set in healthy action every function and gave purity and richness to the blood.

"Favorite Prescription" is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate cases of leucorrhea, excessive flowing, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions, prolapsus, or falling of the womb, weak back, "female weakness," anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb. It is guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or money refunded.

Within the convent grim and gray
And ivy grown,
She liveth on from day to day,
Life's monotone.

She leaveth oft the ancient pile
And passeth by,
Yet I have never seen her smile,
Nor caught her eye.

Her hands are very white and small,
And those who know
Say that on Fever's brow they fall
Like flakes of snow.

They say her voice is soft and sweet
In Sorrow's ear,
Wooing the soul to Mary's feet
From doubt and fear.

Ah, me! And yet her youthful face
Clad though it be
In cold religion's saintly grace
Is fair to see.

Her eyes, so modestly cast down,
So introspect,
Could light a smile or arm a frown
With dire effect!

'Tis just such orbs that steadiest burn
With passion's fire;
Can all the tears in Virtue's urn
Quite quench desire?

Her mouth is red, and shaped for bliss;
It seems a loss
That it should only kiss and kiss
Her rosary cross.

Oh, Little Nun! Thou art too fair!
It had sufficed
If one less sensuously rare
Had wed thy Christ.

The devil oft in form of saint
Entraps the eyes;
Thou art a soul without attaint
In devil's guise!
—George Horton in Chicago Herald.

The Decoration of Prayer Books.

The prayer book that the Vanderbilts, the Astors and other families use for every day, that is to say every Sunday occasion, costs about $50 each. Mrs. Anson Phelps Stokes has just ordered two $60 silver bound prayer books, and these will be given to her two daughters on the occasion of her silver wedding. Prayer books are used now a great deal for presents in society, and particularly for wedding presents. The really correct thing, it may be mentioned, is a small prayer book bound in white morocco, with elaborate silver trimmings. The resulting ornamentation is very rich and very handsome. The designs are either flowers or allegorical figures that have a quaint and mediæval character. The work is open work that shows the cover of the book, and this supplies a very effective groundwork.

In some cases, however, the book is completely cased in silver and the silver is very artistically worked. There is still a slight demand for ivory covers, but the demand is so slight it is scarcely worth mentioning. The covers of the prayer book are embellished with a silver cross if the morocco is retained on one side and the bride's initials on the other. The books themselves are generally of English make and what is known as the Oxford edition. The type is beautiful and the binding is in the highest style known to the art.

In the original covering the Bible or prayer book is about the cheapest book of its quality that can be found. After its manipulation by a fashionable jeweler it is about the dearest. A pretty book mark usually accompanies the prayer book composed of three white ribbons. They are marked with a heart, a cross and an anchor, signifying, of course, faith, hope and charity.—New York World.

George William Curtis' Wife.

I very often see a matronly looking woman with a bright, intellectual face on Broadway, in the vicinity of Washington square. Her manner is simple and dignified, and altogether she is handsome and agreeable. She is rather old fashioned in her ideas of dress. Her gowns have all the quaintness of twenty-five or thirty years ago, and this rather pleasing effect is heightened by the manner in which she wears her hair, pressed flat on top and folded neatly down the sides of her head. Who is she? The wife of George William Curtis. She was a Miss Shaw before her marriage to the brilliant litterateur.

Mrs. Curtis leads a remarkably simple life at her pleasant home on Staten Island. The house is a neat frame cottage. It is surrounded by spacious grounds, in which are many fine old trees. A winding drive leads up from the gate to the house. The appointments of the interior betray at once the literary man and cultured scholar. The house is furnished in extreme good taste, and an air of refinement and culture is prevalent everywhere within. Mrs. Curtis is not known in the literary world except as the wife of Mr. Curtis. She very rarely goes into society, although she has friends by the score. Mrs. Curtis' pleasant and genial appearance does not indicate that she has found the companionship of a literary man irksome or uncongenial.—New York Cor. Springfield (Mass.) Homestead.

Lillian Russell's Daughter.

Little Lillian Russell, aged 6, is a miniature copy of her beautiful mother. She has the same hair and eyes, but her complexion is tanned by the jolly outdoor life she has led. She was never separated from her mother until the last two years, and as a natural consequence of her trips on "the road" she has strong theatrical preferences.

She is now at the Sacred Heart academy, where her mother visits her every week, and takes her home occasionally for a few days. She considers life a dreary waste unless she attends a matinee frequently, and her interest in the play and criticism of the characters are extremely refreshing. She is a warm admirer of Little Lord Fauntleroy.—New York Letter.

Mourning Watches.

Black onyx has lately been utilized in making cases for mourning watches; they are usually open faced. Chains composed of oblong blocks of onyx joined by slender golden links accompany the watches.—Jewelers' Weekly.

Germany employs 5,500,000 women in industrial pursuits, England 4,000,000, France 3,750,000 and Austro-Hungary about the same number, and still women are the weaker sex, the lesser half, the clinging pensioners on man's beneficence.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

YOUNG WOMEN AS TICKET AGENTS IN BROOKLYN.

Won't Sit in the Front Row—For Rosebuds of Marriage—Pretty Souvenirs. What Miss Potter Has Done—Will Women Combine?—Wedding Gowns.

The recent appointment of two women as ticket agents at the Boerum place station of the Kings County Elevated railway has led others to apply for places. They are told there are no vacancies at present, but their names often are taken and reserved for future reference. In the absence of General Manager William T. Goundie a representative of the company said recently that positively none of the men would be turned away to make room for women.

"But," it was asked, "is it to be the rule hereafter that women will be appointed to fill vacancies as they may occur?"

"There is no reason why women should not be appointed," was the reply. "We believe they will prove honest and capable."

The official, however, would not commit himself as to whether or not this was to be the future policy of the company. There are drawbacks to the employment of women. A ticket agent on the elevated roads, as everybody knows, has often to deal with some pretty ugly customers. The two women who are now acting as ticket agents are not deterred by this consideration.

Of the two female ticket agents, one goes on duty at 5 a. m. and stays until 3 p. m.—ten hours. She is relieved then by the other, who remains until 1 o'clock the next morning—ten hours. They will be expected to work seven days in the week, the same as the men. He said they understand this, and had offered no objection. It is said the road had economy in view when it introduced the innovation. The men are paid $12 per week, whereas the women receive $9. A saving of $3 a week out of each of the eighty-eight ticket agents on the road would mean $264 a week for the owners.—New York Sun.

Won't Sit in the Front Row.

The custodian of the large hall in Cooper Union undertook to perform a gallant act on the occasion of the Municipal league mass meeting, and he is now wiser in the ways of the fair sex than he was. Before the clamoring crowd in front of the building was admitted to the hall he told his assistants and the policemen on guard that he wanted the front row of seats reserved for ladies. He was very particular on that point and admonished the police over and over again not to let any men occupy those front seats unless they escorted ladies. The wielders of the persuasive night sticks said all right. Then the doors were opened and the rush came. Of course, every man and boy scurried down in front and swarmed over the front row of seats. Several seated themselves in that forbidden quarter, but they were unceremoniously expelled.

It cost the police and the custodian and the custodian's assistants a great deal of trouble to keep that front row vacant, but they succeeded. Several ladies entered the hall and were politely invited to "step right down in front." They were shown to the front row, but after glancing at the empty seats they turned back and found other places not so far forward. Not one woman could be induced to sit down in that front row. The gallant custodian was sorely puzzled, and finally he mustered sufficient courage to ask one lady who declined to accept his invitation to sit in the front row why she objected. "I don't want to sit there," she exclaimed impatiently, "because there is no place to put my feet."—New York Times.

For Rosebuds of Marriage.

Let me venture a few little points to those of my girls who since the summer have worn a bright ring on their third finger:

My dear, don't let the man to whom you are engaged to be married pay any of the expenses of your living or trousseau until you are his wife. A calico dress and contentment are much more to be desired than a fine silk one garnitured with scandal.

Don't complain to the man to whom you are engaged of the different members of your own family; it is not a good preface to matrimonial bliss.

Don't write silly letters to him, even if he is fond of affection given in that way. Let it be by word of mouth rather than with pen and ink.

Don't expect him to love you as no man has ever loved before. The methods of loving are very much the same all the world over. Be satisfied if you have got a good, honest love.

Don't believe that he is a combination in beauty of all the ancient gods, of all the gallant knights and of all the great statesmen, but conclude that he is a gentleman, and that should be your ideal.

Don't believe that he is thinking of you every hour of his life. He is not; be satisfied if he is working away, with every now and then giving a thought to the girl for whom he is making a home over which he expects her to preside as a loving, thoughtful wife.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Pretty Souvenirs.

A lady who has just returned from the seashore showed me some souvenirs of her vacation. Among them were several jewel receptacles made out of the shells of the sea urchin. Three of these shells, about four inches across and of a delicate lavender, were lined with pale pink silk and fastened to triangular pieces of heavy cardboard with beveled edges, thus making a dainty addition to a bureau or toilet table. To prepare these the opening was made larger by carefully cutting or breaking away the shell; then a small piece of cardboard was placed in the bottom of each, and the shells were fastened by a few stitches to the triangular piece. Some delicate cotton was sprinkled with sachet powder and placed inside. A circular piece of silk was cut large enough so that when gathered over a cord one-half inch from the edge and drawn up to fit the opening it would nicely line the shell, allowing the ruffled edge to lie on the outside of the opening. These may be arranged singly and in groups, but the triangular arrangement was especially pretty.—Housewife.

What Miss Potter Has Done.

Miss Beatrice Potter is at present one of the most famous and talked of women in England. She is a superbly beautiful woman, is of aristocratic connections and owns a large fortune in her own right. For several years past she has been a devoted pupil and disciple of Herbert Spencer. Having read and heard all manner of grewsome stories of the horrors endured by women in sweaters' shops, she dressed herself in the odious rags worn by that class, went down into the City, found work, and for two months lived and labored side by side with those miserable white slaves of the needle.

Few knew her secret, and so cleverly were her plans carried out that neither employers nor employes ever suspected her identity. When she had thoroughly informed herself on all minutiæ relating to the criminal tyranny exercised by the sweaters, and on the hideous lives led by their female victims, she threw off her disguise, returned to the West End, gave exhaustive newspaper interviews and appealed for legislative interference. So strong and unanswerable were her arguments, seconded by her own experiences, that parliament discussed ways and means for righting this great wrong.—New York Telegram.

Will Women Combine?

Will women combine is a question that some of the foremost women in the United States are considering with reference to representation in a federation at the World's fair. The strongest female organization in the world is said to be the Women's Christian Temperance union, which has auxiliaries all over the country and a membership of 200,000. The King's Daughters, including all the circles and subcircles, number 135,000. There are 100,000 women in the Ladies' Relief corps, the Suffragists are about 75,000 strong, the Kindergarten association 50,000, and the working girls' societies in New York alone have an army of 130,000. Here is a league of more than half a million women banded together for mutual and general good, to which, under wise legislation, there should be nothing but success, advancement and prosperity. And yet the question has been raised in Europe and America, Will women combine?—Exchange.

Wedding Gowns.

Pretty Parisian wedding gowns for the season are artistic and beautiful in the extreme. The richest are composed of the new brocaded satins, on whose lustrous surface branches of orange blossoms, white lilacs, snow drops, or the popular fleur-de-lis are strewn. Silver embroidery or brocade is seen on several Worth dresses. When a plain fabric is desired peau de soie, bengaline, soft, thick, repped silk or white satin sewn thickly with pearls, a la Dorothy Tennant, may be chosen. For trimmings there are ruches of white ostrich tips or of lace, thick, close frills of white mousseline de soie, or handsome silver and pearl passementeries. Often the long polonaise is of brocade, and the underskirt of embroidered lace or muslin. Or a plain skirt with bodice waist has a long train of rich brocade.—New York Ledger.

An Exile's Wife.

Mrs. O'Brien, wife of the Irish exile, is a Russian lady of social distinction, and is described by those who have met her as highly intelligent and accomplished. In personal appearance she is of a dark type of beauty, petite and fascinating. She is a zealous adherent of her husband's cause, and has translated into Russian and French the works of John Morley, the Liberal leader, for the widespread dissemination of his views. Being Russian born, it is to be presumed that the present complication in her husband's affairs is in no way disheartening to her—political hot water seeming to be the condition upon which the czar's subjects thrive, or at least in which they frequently find themselves.—New York Times.

Some Complexion Tints.

The cold winds of autumn make the following advice very seasonable: Rose water and brandy is recommended for roughness caused by walking or driving in the wind. Another skin tonic is alcohol and water. The white of an egg beaten well, five grams of alum in five grams of sweet almond oil, is said to be a sure remedy for wrinkles. One teaspoonful of carbolic acid in a pint of rose water is an excellent remedy for pimples. Strong tea will darken the eyelashes, we are told, while sage tea makes the hair dark, and cream made by a pint of glycerine and six ounces of lime water will, when rubbed thoroughly into the hair, make it glossy and keep the scalp clean.—New York Journal.

Springfield's Nurses.

Springfield, Mass., is to have a directory of nurses. The board of registration will consist of two from the trustees and two from the medical staff of the hospital, who will pass upon each applicant. The manager will know the location of every nurse; those unemployed can be reached at short notice, and both the sick and the nurse will be benefited through the convenience of the directory. Mrs. C. A. Nichols is one of the hospital trustees on the board of registration.—Boston Woman's Journal.

The Influence of Reading.

Seventeen years ago Miss Ticknor, of Boston, having been often appealed to to direct the reading of young girls, founded a society to encourage home study. This society, including at first half a dozen names, now has a membership of 524 active students, whose intellectual work is planned and simplified by the Boston office. One of the very best results of the disinterested labors of Miss Ticknor and her fellow workers is found today on a North Carolina farm. The farmer, a lady who is taking three courses of study under the direction of the society, has started on her own place a school, where, at a nominal cost, she offers instruction to that large class of her compatriots "on the border land of good or bad citizenship," who otherwise would have no instruction at all. This school is full, and the gain of the pupils in intelligence and character already visible.—Harper's Bazar.

A Farming Spot in a Big City.

I know an old lady who owns a house in the very heart of the town. It is environed by a splendid little park, where you may see through the fences, as you go past, a browsing cow and a colony of fowl, garden houses and beds of flaming flowers. Year in and year out the owner has resisted the most tempting offers to sell this land, each foot of which is almost priceless. Of all the rich people of New York—and she is by no means one of the richest in money—she is almost alone in her love of a touch of nature under her own windows, and in an appreciation of the fact that the rustle of green leaves and the twitter of birds is a melody as precious as the clink of minted gold.—New York Cor. Pittsburg Bulletin.

A Diamond Earring in Her Shoe.

One of the most singular happenings occurred in this city on Monday evening. A lady of East Main street while walking home was disturbed by an article in her shoe, which she thought at first to be a cinder which had gotten in while walking along. She went limping home, and on removing her shoe found a diamond earring. Her dress skirt had apparently caught it up in some manner and dropped it into her shoe. The lady is at a loss to know who lost the valuable, and cannot tell where she found it.—Lexington (Ky.) Press.

From One Head of Barley.

Four years ago Miss Lena Woodard, living on Thorn creek, Wash., sowed the seed from one head of barley. She harvested the crop with a pair of shears, and sowed the amount received the next year, again harvesting it with her shears. The third crop her father cut with a grass scythe, getting enough barley from this crop to sow forty acres last spring, which averaged forty bushels to the acre when thrashed, making a total yield of 1,600 bushels from one head of barley in four years.—Detroit News.

A young lady in a far western state recently sent the following inquiry to some one in Washington: "Will you inform me where the navy of the United States is, and how many men do they keep there, and what else do they keep there, and what do they keep them for? Do the men-of-war stay there? How many guns, cannons and shells do they keep there, and what do they keep them for?"

Women of fashion to whom economy is an unknown word wear black tights for which they pay from $5 to $12 a pair in silk and from $3 to $9 in fine jersey or cashmere wool. A garment of this sort is hosiery and suit in one piece and gives the wearer a freedom and grace to which there is nothing comparable in the petticoat line. With a silk slip and a tailor made suit the outfit is perfect.

W. W. Hall, A. M., D. D., who has written several books on health, physical and moral, thus speaks of the housewife of some twenty years ago: "When our wives get to work they go about it too violently altogether, keep at it too long, and before they know it are perfectly exhausted, overheated, lie down insufficiently covered, take cold and are 'laid up' for days and weeks afterward."

Miss White, a missionary attached to the China Island mission, has a daring scheme in prospect to elude the vigilance of the Thibetan officials on the frontier, and to enter the dominions of the grand lama. She has already familiarized herself with the language, and is only awaiting an auspicious opportunity to attempt a feat which no Englishman has accomplished in the last half century.

Miss Ada Webb, a well figured young woman who gives a graceful performance in a large tank, has been presented by the Royal Humane society in London with a testimonial for plunging into the deepest water at the Brumley swimming baths in full walking dress and rescuing three women struggling in the water in a combination of cramp, panic and indiscretion.

Mrs. Vincent Glass, a London lady and disciple of Oscar Wilde, has invented an ornamental shoulder brace which little school children and young ladies studying the violin, piano and drawing are made to wear for a correct position. At one time all the girls in St. Helen's college wore as a gift the Vincent shoulder straightener.

A three hours' drive with a snake was taken recently by a lady in Ceylon. On getting out of her carriage she moved the cushions to find something which had slipped down, and to her horror discovered a huge cobra coiled up underneath. Had not the creature been in a semi-torpid condition she could not have escaped alive.

Apropos of the educational progress of women in England, it is worthy of note that at Birmingham there are 41 women and only 3 men candidates for the Cambridge higher local examinations; at Bradford, 24 women, 1 man; Leeds, 25 women, 2 men; at Manchester, 43 women, 1 man; at Liverpool, 59 women, 1 man.

Mme. Le Roy, mother of the Duc d'Alicante, and well known to the scientific world from her explorations in Asia and Africa, is now preparing to start for India. She intends to visit every port in the country and to ascend the Himalayas during her journey.
